Respected Sir/Madam,

In the village of Othalavadi, Chetpet Taluk, Tiruvannamalai District, Tamil Nadu, India, there is an ancient Jain temple that is approximately 1,000 years old. According to the history passed down by our ancestors, when the Chola princess Kundavai Piratti, who belonged to the 10th Century, established the Tirumalai Jain temple, another temple was also established at nearby Othalavadi. It is also known from the inscription on the southern wall of the temple that the Chola King Othalan and the Mallinatha Sambuvaraya kings who came later provided Pallisandham and other endowments to this temple.

The presiding deity of the Jain temple is 1008 Shri Virshabanatha Bhagwan, the first of the 24 Tirthankaras. The main idol has been beautifully crafted, with a Kalpavriksha tree depicted behind the idol. He is also known as Aniya Alagar.

Previously, up to 80 families lived in this village. At present, around 40 families reside here. Our main occupation is agriculture. We conduct the Bhagwan Utsavar Veethi Ula festival on the occasion of Akshaya Tritiya and on Kaanum Pongal. During the Tamil month of Margazhi, Mukkudai Pooja is conducted. The local Chakreshwari Amman Women's Association conducts the lighting of Bakthamara lamps every month on the full moon day. Pooja is also conducted on the second Sunday of every month. The Women's Association and the Othalavadi Samanar Ezhuchi Ilaignar Mandram jointly participate in the monthly maintenance of the temple. The temple is opened every morning and evening, and daily Nithya Pooja is performed.

To renovate this ancient temple, the people of the village have joined together and, on 17/06/2026, registered the 1008 Shri Virshabanatha Bhagwan

Jain Temple Trust, consisting of 108 members. For the expansion of the temple, four families have jointly donated 20 cents of land. We propose to newly construct and develop the following facilities:

- Renovation of Temple Gopuram(Tower)
- Renovation of the upper floor
- Idols of the 24 Tirthankaras
- Compound wall
- Walkway
- Borewell
- Tyagi Nivas
- Auditorium

On 26/08/2026, Thirumalai Arhatagiri Swasthi Shri Thavalakeerthi Swamigal performed the Bhoomi Pooja. The renovation and construction works are currently being carried out under his guidance. We therefore humbly request you to extend your valuable support and provide a donation towards these temple renovation and development works.

Yours faithfully,
